Dear Dalea Bukhary,
Congratulations! We are pleased to inform you that you have been selected to receive a 2012 ASBMR Young Investigator Travel Grant for the abstract presentation "Directed Differentiation of Embryonic Stem Cells to Chondrocyte and Osteoblast lineages: The Role of RhoA/ROCK Signaling". (If you have not received your abstract notification, please let me know).
The Young Investigator Travel Grant is being given to the top Young Investigators who will be presenting an oral or plenary poster presentation at the ASBMR 2012 Annual Meeting. As an ASBMR Young Investigator Travel Grant recipient, you will receive $500 to support your travel to the Meeting.
Before we proceed, please confirm no later than Friday, August 3, 2012 that you are eligible to receive this travel grant. These are given to individuals who are:

1. first and presenting author of the highest ranking abstracts within each category
2. within five years of completion of a Ph.D. or residency training (for M.D., D.D.S., or their equivalent)*

*The five years of eligibility are defined to extend from the end of the calendar year of the graduation date or residency completion to the submission deadline date, April 11, 2012. Please note: This does not preclude students who have not yet graduated or completed their residency from being eligible for this award.
In addition, the travel grant recipient must be present at the 2012 Annual Meeting to make the oral or plenary poster presentation. If you do not plan on attending the meeting or presenting this abstract, you will need to forfeit the travel grant.
__ Yes, I am eligible for the travel grant

If you are eligible to receive the travel grant, please complete the following information so we can process your $500 check and send back to Lindsay Schoenle at lschoenle@asbmr.org no later than Friday, August 3, 2012. You will be able to pick-up your check onsite starting Sunday, October 14, 2012.
