

McKinsey&Company

McKinsey invites Arabic speaking students and graduates with fewer than 6 years of experience who are passionate about driving and shaping the future of the Middle East to participate in edad London.

The edad programme brings together Arabic speakers from across Europe and offers them the opportunity to discover the universe of consulting, take part in professional learning programs to develop critical skills for the workplace and get first-hand insights about McKinsey and its work in the Middle East.

Those selected to participate will automatically advance to the first round of interviews for our Middle East office.

At edad London you can expect to:

- learn more about McKinsey Middle East, our work and the values that set us apart
- further develop your communication, presentation and problem-solving skills
- solve a case study to better understand the meaningful work we do with clients
- build a network of others who want to return to region and make positive changes

If you would like to be considered for edad London please submit an online application: HERE by 11:59 PM EST on March 13, 2019
